

CLOSED

ALL DAY

TODAY

ON ACCOUNT OF HOLIDAY.EISEMAN BROS.,
Corner 7th and E Sts. N. W.

No Branch Store in Washington.

INTRIGUES IN REPUBLICS

Central America Upset by Ambitions of Party Leaders.

ANARCHY MAKES A SHOWING

Reports That the Assault on President Diaz, of Mexico, Was the Result of a Conspiracy Hatched in Guatemala—Costa Rica Make War With Guatemala.

La Libertad, Salvador, Sept. 26.—The results in Central American republics are becoming widespread in their effects. How far they may go is a matter that causes no little concern throughout the whole republican system of the southern part of the continent.

In Guatemala and Costa Rica the results are more vicious than for a long time, and, as a very well known periodical dispatch has prevailed there for a series of years.

Monarchy is said to have a hand in the disorders, an evidence of which is declared to have been shown in the assault last week of Arroyo upon President Diaz, of Mexico. A conspiracy hatched in Guatemala was hatched in Guatemala.

It seems, according to these authorities, that Arroyo, who attacked President Diaz in the streets, although a failure in the City of Mexico, was in reality acting under orders from an anarchist organization in Guatemala.

A similar figure as to the strength of the revolutionary forces in Guatemala make the following showing: Men under arms, 8,342; general including Gen. Jose Salazar, who was just joined the revolutionary movement, 50,000; 100,000, and lieutenant colonels, 240. The latter have fifteen pieces of heavy artillery, eighteen machine guns, and 10,000 modern rifles.

Former President Barrios, of Guatemala, has offered his services to Barrios and given 3,000 armed men from his estates. He has also contributed money.

Barrios is now trying to form a new cabinet, an individual Minister of war, Gregorio Salazar; Minister of education, Mariano Cruz; Minister of public works, Teodoro Garcia.

Fifteen prisoners of war were executed in Changuinola on September 21. There are now in the prisons more than 600 political suspects.

Advices from Corinto, Nicaragua, say, although the revolution in Nicaragua has been quieted, the country remains in a state of alarm and apprehension. A severe and cruel war is being waged against the rebels, and the rebels are being driven to the mountains and the hills. Private and business letters of natives and foreigners alike must be handed to the postmaster open for his personal before they are mailed.

The general opinion in Nicaragua is that a more formidable attempt will be made to overthrow the government as soon as President Zeledón's new ministry is installed.

This new ministry is as follows: Minister of war and marine, Erasmo Calderon; Minister of the interior, Manuel C. Matias; Minister of public works, Jose Antonio Rosendo; Minister of finance, Enrique C. Lopez; Minister of education, Mariano Cruz; Minister of public works, Teodoro Garcia.

The news stating that the Costa Rican vessel in Nicaragua, Don Eduardo Beebe, has been thrown into prison in Managua, Nicaragua, by order of the president, changed with complacency in the revolution, caused a friendly excitement. The situation is grave, and there is a general belief that a conflict between the two countries is at hand.

The invasion of Costa Rica is regarded in diplomatic circles as a serious breach of international etiquette. Nicaragua, should, according to the opinion of the government of Costa Rica, have either asked for the recall of Señor Beebe or else given him his passport. There is little doubt that Costa Rica will demand the release of her consul, with an apology from Nicaragua.

SHAFT ENTERED HIS BODY.
Bicycle Collides With a Buggy With Serious Results.

Samuel Chittima, a printer, living at No. 330 E street northwest, while riding a bicycle near Captain John Bridge yesterday evening, collided with a buggy driven by an unknown person, and was painfully and seriously injured.

He struck the end of one of the buggy shafts. The point penetrated his abdomen about two inches, and was broken off by the collision. Mr. Chittima was conveyed to Georgetown in a Great Falls Electric Railway car, and removed to the Georgetown Hospital in the Third precinct patrol wagon. His wounds were dressed by Dr. Hale and are considered very serious.

MAMIE TOOK LAUDANUM.
It Was Pumped Out of Her at the Emergency Hospital.

Mamie Jackson, a colored girl, living at No. 441 Reed street, had some trouble yesterday which grieved her, and, according to her statements, she took a dose of laudanum to soothe her.

Her friends became alarmed and notified the police of the Second precinct, and she was removed to the Emergency Hospital, where Drs. Hale and Field used the stomach pump upon her successfully. The physicians doubt that the girl took any great amount of the poison, as she soon recovered and was sent home.

NOTE LEFT BY A SUICIDE.
Says Three Men Wrecked His Life Eighteen Years Ago.

Canandaigua, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The remains of Mr. E. L. Burnett, of Elmira, were found on the shore of Canandaigua Lake today. On his person the following letter, dated September 25, was found:

"To Whom It May Concern:
"Charles Hazard, A. M. DeWitt and Judge Pratt, wrecked my life eighteen years ago. The vendetta is still open. They are dead and I follow into hell if need be. Yours for revenge."

Mr. Burnett came to the Webster House on Friday and registered as G. L. Brown, of Buffalo. He disappeared Friday night and was not seen again until his remains were found today.

A remarkable thing connected with the death of Burnett is the fact that Hazard, mentioned in the note, committed suicide on Friday last. In Burnett's room was found a watch in which there was, among other things, an empty vial bearing the label "Morphine."

AN OCEAN RECORD BROKEN

The Kaiser Wilhelm Beats the St. Paul's Time.

WONDERFUL TIME MADE

Her Run of 564 Knots in One Day Exceeds by Two Knots the Best Westward Daily Run of the Cunarder Lucania—Great Things Expected in the Future

New York, Sept. 26.—The glitziest of liners, the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, of the North German Lloyd fleet, which arrived in port tonight, beat the record from Southampton, which was six days and thirty-one minutes, and was held by the St. Paul, of the American line.

The time of the great German scorcher is five days twenty-two hours and forty-five minutes. She not only created a new record on the Southampton route, but she surpasses all maiden records on any route and imparts the supremacy of the Cunarders, Lucania and Campania, as mistresses of the ocean for sea of commerce.

A look at her record for the day indicates what may be expected of her in the future when her machinery has limbered up. At noon on her first day from the Needles she had covered 208 knots. She distinguished herself on her first full day run by eclipsing the record of the old ship on the Southampton route. She ran off 531 knots. On the succeeding days her runs were, respectively, 495, 512, 554, 564, and to Sandy Hook, 186 knots.

Her run of 564 knots, completed on the nautical day ending at noon on Saturday, exceeds by two knots the best westward daily run of the Cunarder, Lucania. This clearly indicates that it will not be long before the Lucania will be a lack number.

The Kaiser covered 3,050 knots at an average hourly speed of 23.9 knots. There are higher averages than that, as is shown in another part of this story, but this is only a maiden trip.

On her magnificent run of 564 knots yesterday the Kaiser made an average of nearly twenty-three knots an hour, which is what her builders, the Vulcan Shipbuilding Company of Britain, think she can do for a whole voyage. It is thought she can beat the Lucania by about a knot an hour, and will reduce the time from Southampton to five days and a half. She developed 30,000 horse-power on the trip she finished ahead of the Sandy Hook lightship, and her average daily consumption of coal was 500 tons.

Her steam pressure to the square inch was 180 pounds, and the average revolutions of her screws was 77 to the minute. At certain hours on the trip the steam pressure was a trifle higher, and the revolutions of her propellers faster. That was notably so during the last eight hours, when her average speed was 23.14 knots.

Five years ago the Hamburg-American Line had the record from Southampton. The British built steamship Paris, of the American Line, cut it down to 6 days 9 hours and 57 minutes, and the American liner, St. Paul and St. Louis, reduced it to the figures that the Kaiser has just eclipsed.

The best hourly average of the Campanis for a voyage is 22.04 knots, made in May, 1895.

The best hourly average of the St. Paul is 21.08 knots.

The best single day's run of the Lucania is 552 knots; Campania, 553 knots; St. Paul and St. Louis, each, 549 knots.

The Kaiser will sail from this port on Thursday, and will undoubtedly make another record made by the American liner St. Louis. That record will probably not be a very hard one for her, as it is six days, ten hours and fourteen minutes, an average speed of 19.94 knots.

COLLISION ON THE ROAD

Runaway Team Dashes Into Two Surrays, Demolishing Them.

The Injured Persons Taken to the Ham's Horn Inn to Receive Temporary Attention.

A serious runaway accident occurred last night on the Queen's Chapel road, between the District line and the Ham's Horn Inn. The facts concerning the accident and the extent of the injuries to the occupants of the carriages, as well as their names, are very meager.

As a party as could be learned, however, a pair of eight or ten Washingtons, several of them ladies, had been to the Ham's Horn Inn, and were returning home at the time. They occupied two surreys, and were driving rather rapidly. About a mile from the Inn a team of horses attached to a wagon in which there were three persons and driven by a man named Rupert took fright and dashed madly down the Queen's Chapel road.

In front of them were the two surreys, one of which is said to have belonged to a Mr. Schneider. Before the driver of the one in the rear could get out of the way the frightened animals ran into the surrey, upsetting it and throwing the occupants of both vehicles from their seats into the road. The ladies were thrown violently and are said to have sustained serious injuries.

Mr. James McGrath, the restaurateur at Twelfth and D streets northwest, was driving with his wife near the scene of the accident at the time. The accident occurred, and he was thrown from his seat and landed in the road. He was not injured, but he was very much shaken.

The vehicles were demolished, but the extent of the injuries to the occupants of the surrey and other vehicle could not be learned last night. None of the names of the parties, except Mr. Rupert and Mr. Schneider, are known.

Jealousy and Stabbed His Wife.
Jealousy was the motive that prompted Andrew Brown, colored, yesterday, to deliberately assault Fannie Brown, his wife, with intent to kill. He waited for her in Barefoot alley, near Eleventh and F streets northwest, about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and when she came along made a lunge at her with a long-handled pocketknife, inflicting a painful gash on her left arm several inches long.

Thinking that he had fatally wounded the woman, Brown disappeared. The police of the Eighth precinct police station were notified, and the woman was conveyed to the Garfield Hospital in the ambulance. At 5 o'clock Brown was arrested by Police-men Fox and Carroll at the mouth of Noah's Ark, an alley near Fourteenth and T streets northwest.

Violated Sunday Law.
Frank Tabbs, a colored barber shop proprietor, was yesterday arrested by Police-men Evans of the Second precinct station, for having his barber shop open on Sunday.

GASOLINE STOVE AGAIN.

Exploded, Burned Annie Sparks and Set Fire to Building.

The explosion of a gasoline stove about noon yesterday in a house at No. 606 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, nearly cost Miss Annie Sparks her life. She had attempted to light a fire in the gasoline range, and while bending over the stove the oil exploded and enveloped her face and hands in a flame.

The explosion startled the other inmates of the house, who rushed into the kitchen and found Miss Sparks in a dangerous condition, with parts of her clothing on fire. These flames were put out, and an alarm was turned in to which engine No. 8 responded and put out the fire in the building.

Miss Sparks was painfully burned about the face, head and arms, as well as her hands, and her hair was singed.

A physician was summoned and dressed her wounds, which, though painful, are not thought to be serious. The damage to the building was about $100, and most of the furniture was gotten safely out of the kitchen.

EARLY MORNING FIRE.
The Lumber Yard of Church & Stephenson Destroyed.

Fire was discovered by Policemen Bruce shortly after 2 o'clock this morning in the stable adjoining Church & Stephenson's lumber yard, at Ninth street and Maryland avenue southeast.

The flames spread rapidly and soon enveloped the entire lumber yard, extending from Eighth to Ninth streets along Maryland avenue.

Owing to the intense heat of the burning pine timber and dry lumber the firemen were handicapped in their efforts to fight the flames.

Nearly the entire yard, containing thousands of feet of lumber, was totally destroyed. A large number of horses and mules were in the stable, but all were out loose and saved.

The fire is supposed to have been started by a lamp in the hay loft of the stable. The damage is estimated at $10,000 to $12,000.

NEWS FROM ALEXANDRIA

No Change in the Condition of Young Smith.

He Retracts His Statement That the Wound Was Inflicted in Anger—Notes and Personalities.

The condition of young Robert Smith, who was stabbed by George Baggett, a companion, at the corner of St. Asaph and Duke streets last night, is unchanged. Dr. O'Brien, the attending physician, says the wound is of a severe nature, although not necessarily fatal. The knife entered the back between the tenth and eleventh ribs, and penetrated the left lung.

When questioned last night in regard to the affair Smith stated that the wound had been inflicted in anger. This morning, when the police went to further investigate the affair, the wounded boy said that he thought it was an accident, and that Baggett did not intend to stab him. After hearing the latter statement Baggett was not played under arrest.

The affair will be investigated by the police. The two young men are of good character, and their parents are among the best citizens of Alexandria.

Mr. King Weadon died at his home, 615 King street, at an early hour this morning. Mr. Weadon was a member of the firm of Wendon Brothers, and was well known and highly esteemed.

Up to the present time nothing definite has been learned of the $225 batch of revenue stamps which was lost by Treasurer Richardson, of the Customs House, in the burning of the Custom House. The stamps, although what is thought to be a good "hook" has been obtained. Every effort is being made by those interested to locate the stamps, which are believed to be held for a reward, as they are only of value by any other than the one on whose account they are issued.

It is stated that a resident of Alexandria county made the assertion that he could name the man who has the stamps in his possession, and it is thought that an effort will be made to have him do so.

Richard Toy is looked up at police headquarters, charged with the larceny of $25 from Harry Krenner, his brother-in-law. The robbery is alleged to have been committed in Washington. Toy's friends believe him innocent of the charge. The affair will be investigated by Mayor Simpson tomorrow morning.

A largely attended meeting of Alexandria Division—Ancient Order of Hibernians, was held in St. Mary's Hall this afternoon. Mr. J. R. Flannigan tendered his resignation as president, and Mr. M. R. O'Sullivan was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. Rev. Father Ouler was present and addressed the members.

John Whiting, colored, was arrested today by Policemen Beites, charged with the larceny of a watch from the residence of a colored man, who was convicted of a similar charge in the police court yesterday. Corbin is locked up at the police station on a bread and water diet, having refused to work on the chain gang.

T. F. Beach was arrested by Policemen Lyles today, charged with having as a servant George Kirby, a resident of North Lee street.

St. Mary's Church was thronged at 7 o'clock this morning with the parents and friends of seventy-four children who were candidates for the sacrament of confirmation. Bishop Van de Vyver, of Richmond, officiated and administered the rites of confirmation. At the 11 o'clock service the bishop preached on the "Sacrament of Penance." There was a large congregation present, including many non-Catholics.

The teachers of St. Mary's Sunday school met this afternoon and perfected arrangements for reopening the school on Sunday next.

There will be a musical and literary entertainment at Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday night for the benefit of the Methodist Protestant Church.

The family of Mr. J. Matthews has returned from London.

The condition of Mr. Frank L. Entwistle, who is sick with typhoid fever, is still regarded as serious.

Miss Josie Robinson has returned from a visit to Warrenton.

Miss Rae Field, of Lynchburg, is visiting her sister, Miss Sadie Field, on South Lee street.

Violated Sunday Law.
Frank Tabbs, a colored barber shop proprietor, was yesterday arrested by Police-men Evans of the Second precinct station, for having his barber shop open on Sunday.

CELEBRATED MURDER CASE

Preparing for the Trials of Mrs. Nack and Thorn.

EVIDENCE SEEMS CONCLUSIVE

The Links in the Chain Which the Prosecuting Attorney Thinks Will Bind the Accused to the Electric Chair—The One Weak Spot in the State's Case.

New York, Sept. 26.—When the mutilated and dismembered trunk of a man was found floating in the East River early in the summer there seemed very little likelihood that it would ever be positively identified. Other portions of the body were discovered, but the head was missing, and it has not yet been located. The police promptly surmised that medical students had tried to dispose of a cadaver in this unusual manner. Reports soon learned that the body of a well-developed man had a regular market value in this city and that no person with much knowledge of surgery could have wielded the knife. Still, as there was no better explanation at hand, the police clung to this theory.

The mystery was solved and seemingly impregnable. The first clues proved valueless, and investigation seemed to have no other result than a waste of time. It appeared most likely that the perpetrators of an awful crime would escape punishment.

William Guldensuppe, a rubber, employed in a Turkish bath on West Forty-second street, had been missing for several days, and some of his friends called at the morgue and identified the headless trunk. They declared that they could not be mistaken, as the marks on his body and legs were as familiar to them as his features.

It was known to his associates that he had spent much of his time when not at work in the company of Mrs. Augusta Nack, a widow, who had an apartment over a drug store in Ninth avenue, just above the Fourth street. The woman became involved in a mesh of circumstantial evidence and was placed under arrest. A search was then begun for Martin Thorn, who was also implicated. He was finally captured through the disclosures of John Galt, a barber, whom he had taken into his confidence and who betrayed him to the authorities.

There were many broken links in the chain of evidence at the time that the arrests were made. Many of the most important discoveries in the case up to that time had been made by the news papers, and Assistant District Attorneys Mitchell and Rosovsky, who had been especially assigned to the murder mystery, decided, with Mr. Oltott's approval, to conceal nothing from the public. Each of their reports was made known to the public, and the investigation was directed to reporters, whose investigations gradually brought to light the full story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

CELEBRATED MURDER CASE

Preparing for the Trials of Mrs. Nack and Thorn.

EVIDENCE SEEMS CONCLUSIVE

The Links in the Chain Which the Prosecuting Attorney Thinks Will Bind the Accused to the Electric Chair—The One Weak Spot in the State's Case.

New York, Sept. 26.—When the mutilated and dismembered trunk of a man was found floating in the East River early in the summer there seemed very little likelihood that it would ever be positively identified. Other portions of the body were discovered, but the head was missing, and it has not yet been located. The police promptly surmised that medical students had tried to dispose of a cadaver in this unusual manner. Reports soon learned that the body of a well-developed man had a regular market value in this city and that no person with much knowledge of surgery could have wielded the knife. Still, as there was no better explanation at hand, the police clung to this theory.

The mystery was solved and seemingly impregnable. The first clues proved valueless, and investigation seemed to have no other result than a waste of time. It appeared most likely that the perpetrators of an awful crime would escape punishment.

William Guldensuppe, a rubber, employed in a Turkish bath on West Forty-second street, had been missing for several days, and some of his friends called at the morgue and identified the headless trunk. They declared that they could not be mistaken, as the marks on his body and legs were as familiar to them as his features.

It was known to his associates that he had spent much of his time when not at work in the company of Mrs. Augusta Nack, a widow, who had an apartment over a drug store in Ninth avenue, just above the Fourth street. The woman became involved in a mesh of circumstantial evidence and was placed under arrest. A search was then begun for Martin Thorn, who was also implicated. He was finally captured through the disclosures of John Galt, a barber, whom he had taken into his confidence and who betrayed him to the authorities.

There were many broken links in the chain of evidence at the time that the arrests were made. Many of the most important discoveries in the case up to that time had been made by the news papers, and Assistant District Attorneys Mitchell and Rosovsky, who had been especially assigned to the murder mystery, decided, with Mr. Oltott's approval, to conceal nothing from the public. Each of their reports was made known to the public, and the investigation was directed to reporters, whose investigations gradually brought to light the full story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.

Mrs. Nack and Thorn, though originally indicted in this city, have since been transferred to Queens county, where Guldensuppe is kept in the County Jail. The story of the murder is told in the story of the crime.